

TRIAL FOR MILAN PAIR SET FRIDAY

Dyke McQuaid and James Murphy to Get Hearing on Warrant Sworn Out by Street Car Conductor.

IOWA CITY MAX IS ASSESSED

Raymond Scott Fined for Carrying a Concealed Weapon—Gun Found on Him at Station.

Two Milan men will fight a charge of disorderly conduct in Rock Island police court Friday. They are accused of having drunk whisky on a Watch Tower car late Saturday night.

Another Milan case will be heard in police court Wednesday. Jessie Vaughn, a Milan woman, accuses Oliver Boswell of disorderly conduct, claiming he was threatening and boisterous. Boswell went to the county jail in default of $400 bond.

Harry Servas, who recently did a county jail stretch in Bloomington for burglary, was arrested and taken to the county jail here, in default of $400 bond. The charge is disorderly conduct. Police will make an investigation to learn more about Servas.

Raymond Scott, Iowa City, armed with a .22-calibre revolver, was found late last night in the vicinity of Seventh avenue and Seventeenth street by Patrolman Thorman. He told the officer he was lost. When being searched at the station and the gun was found he could give no satisfactory explanation for having it. He was fined $15 and costs today on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

MAN OF 60 ACCUSED BY A GIRL OF SEVEN

Harry Moore, aged 60, is in custody, accused by Jessie Hollwood, aged 7, 421 Fifteenth street, with having taken improper liberties with her. Moore was arrested by Patrolmen Kinsley and Gruby last night on a description the little girl furnished the police. The alleged attempted assault occurred Wednesday. The child told the police that a man met her and took her to a vacant brick house near the Kenna school which she attends. He gave her money. She broke loose from him. She positively identified Moore today as her assailant. Police say they learned that Moore was discharged by a family for which he had been working because of attentions he had been paying to children. His case was continued until Saturday. He was taken to the county jail in default of bond in the sum of $1,000.

GERMAN INVENTS NEW FOOD SAVER

Device Which Removes Moisture By Centrifugal Force Instead of By Heat Is Successful.

Munich, Germany. — (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The latest invention for conserving Germany's food supply, and, scientists believe, one of the most valuable in years, is a machine recently completed by a Munich engineer, G. A. Krause. By the application of a centrifugal force rather than by heat, the machine is said to quickly and absolutely extract the moisture from all kinds of food stuffs, without removing any of the valuable ingredients.

Milk placed in the new machine quickly turns to a whitish, almost vapor-like powder. But, unlike milk which has been reduced to powder by heating processes, the fluid treated in the centrifugal motion machine is said to lose none of its nutritive value, and when mixed with water an hour or a year later becomes real, pure milk again. It tastes precisely like the original; it contains, as chemical analysis show, every one of the characteristics and properties of milk, and produces a thick, rich cream—providing the original milk did—from which butter may be churned.

Herr Krause has as yet revealed his exact process to no one, though his machine is open to inspection and he has operated it for the benefit of scores of scientific men. It resembles a huge wooden boiler set in vertical position—about six feet through and twelve feet high—and isoperated by electricity. Since no movement is visible when the motor is turned on, and the drying process is astonishingly rapid, the mysterious transformation of milk, eggs, or fruit to powder, before one's eyes, is almost uncanny.

When Herr Krause had completed his machine, after years of experimentation, he notified a scientist of his acquaintance of its invention and of what it would do, and invited him to inspect it. The scientist came to Munich as a decided doubter, but after one demonstration of the new machine he telephoned to fellow servants to come to Munich and see the most remarkable product of the war.

Inevitably, commercial circles heard of the machine and began to investigate. A famous Hamburg chemical concern, interested in the problem of drying certain chemicals that spoil in a short time, finally took hold of the machine. But before it did, Herr Krause gave the members of the firm a unique entertainment. He poured a quantity of milk into the machine and dried it to powder. He repeated the process with a number of eggs. In succession, potatoes, fruit and a number of other edibles were reduced to powder. The various powders then were taken to a kitchen in the inventor's home.

With the guests still watching, amazed and almost incredulous, Krause added water to the milk in the right proportion. The powdered eggs he put into a huge frying pan, added water and butter, and in a very short time had a tasty and attractive dish of scrambled eggs. The fruits he transformed into a sort of jam or marmalade and the potatoes he served in still another way.

Then the chemists sat down to lunch with the inventor. They went enthusiastically on record to the same day that each and every dish prepared from the dried and powdered products tasted absolutely like the original foods, and that no flavor had been lost. While food drying processes are by no means new, nearly all of them are operated with heat. The greater the heat necessary in most cases, the greater is the loss of some valuable element in the food.

Those who have been in a position to examine the new invention critically and scientifically regret only that its completion has come only after 20 months of war, for they are convinced that it could have been of the greatest use in making the lives of soldiers in the fields more bearable. The powder of milk or any other food is easily carried and transformable back into food or liquid with such astonishing ease as to make it a thoroughly practical addition to the soldier's kit.

Herr Krause's laboratory machine in Munich is large enough to dry great quantities of any food at once. It can, however, be constructed in almost any size, depending upon the amount of water that it is desired to remove from any given food.

LABORERS MEET TO FORM A UNION HERE

At a mass meeting held Saturday evening at the Rock Island Industrial hall laborers and hodcarriers of the tri-cities took first steps in organizing a local union and to affiliate themselves both with the Tri-City Federation of Labor and the American Federation of Labor. Application for a charter has been sent in and another meeting has been called for Thursday, at which time organization will be perfected. The new union will be the first of its kind in this vicinity. The forming of this body is a part of an organization campaign now being carried on by the federation. The meeting was addressed by Charles Strickler of Davenport and the machine was pushed forward into a horse and buggy, driven by Ben Lovington of Davenport. Both front wheels of the auto were broken and several spokes knocked out of the wheel in the buggy. No one was hurt.
